In an article in the Niasteenth Century Dr. CAMPENTER, the distinguished English scientist, says that the alleged inefficiency of vaccination, often asserted since Dr. Jenuer's time, has been due to the fact that the virus used in vaccinating persons who afterward took the small-pox was not trush from the cow, but had been weakened by long framsmission through the human subject. Vaccine virus not fresh from the cow, but "humanized" by many removes, affords no protection, and may communicate dangerous maladies. But Dr. Carpenter details many facts to show that good boving virus is free from nearly all the ob-
